Judge Mulligan Died

A Lexington Home
Judge James Mulligan died at his home in Lexington Tuesday, July 13. James Hilary Mulligan, poet, author, legislator, diplomat, and Kentucky gentleman of the fast vanishing school, was born in Lexington, November 21, 1814.

Judge Mulligan combined law with journalism. For years he represented the Cincinnati Enquirer, the Cincinnati Gazette, Louisville Democrat and several eastern papers. In 1867 and 1868 he was associated with Col. C. P. Breckinridge in the conduct of the Lexington Observer and Reporter. Col. Breckinridge was editor and Judge Mulligan city editor of that paper.

Following is Judge Mulligan's famous poem:

In Kentucky

The streams dance on the gladdest,

The moonlight falls the softest.

In Kentucky:

The summer days come ofttest,

In Kentucky

Friendship is the strongest,

Love's light glows the longest,

Yet, wrong is always wrongest,

In Kentucky.

Life's burdens bear the lightest,

In Kentucky:

The home fires burn the brightest,

In Kentucky:

While players are the keenest,

Cards come out the meanest,

The pocket empties cleanest,

In Kentucky.

The sun shines ever brightest,

In Kentucky:

The breezes whisper lightest,

In Kentucky:

Plain girls are the fewest,

Their little hearts are the truest,

Maiden's eyes are the bluest

In Kentucky.

Orators are the grandest,

In Kentucky

Officials are the blindest,

In Kentucky.

Boys are the fleetest,

Danger ever nightest,

Taxes are the highest,

In Kentucky.

The blue grass waves the bluest,

In Kentucky:

Yet, bluebirds are the fewest (?)

In Kentucky:

Moonshine is the clearest,

By no means the dearest,

And, yet, it acts the queerest,

In Kentucky.

The dove notes are the saddest,

In Kentucky:

The streams dance on the gladdest

In Kentucky

Hip pockets are the thickest,

Pistol hands are the slickest,

The cylinder turns quickest,

In Kentucky.

The song birds are the sweetest,

In Kentucky:

The thoroughbreds are the fleetest,

In Kentucky:

Mountains tower proudest,

Thunder peals the loudest,

The landscape is the grandest—

And politics—the damndest—

In Kentucky.

Peculiar Malady Affecting

Hogs in Mercer.

The Harrodsburg Herald has this to say in regard to a new disease which made its appearance among the hogs in Mercer county:

Mr. Dave Teater, who lives on the Perryville pike, has suffered the loss of some very fine hogs from a very peculiar malady. The hogs did not show any sickness, never quit eating and after a hearty meal they would suddenly drop over and begin snapping their teeth, frothing at the mouth and squealing. Apparently their suffering was very great and death would come in less than half an hour. When Mr. Teater was in town Tuesday he had lost five of his nine fine hogs and said he expected to find the others gone when he got back home.

James W. Thacker, of Scott county traded his farm of 228 acres on the Oxford pike, known as the Will Finley Place, to Payne Harper and John F. Payne for their one-fourth interest in the Payne estate of 600 acres on the Payne's Depot pike. The consideration was given as $22,500.

THE CHURCHES.

Rev. Mangum, of Paris, in a recent sermon took occasion to speak plainly against a certain dance that was held in that city, classing it as highly immoral. This raised a storm of protest among those who attended and a delegation of citizens called on him for the purpose of having him retract his statements. He stood his grounds. Then he was severely denounced by the participants through the press of that city.

We know nothing of the facts of this case and have nothing to say in the same.

The churches are the foundations of public character and they stand for all things that are good in man or woman. But the trouble is that they are failing to stand out against some things that are detrimental to the young in the formation of their characters. They have been very tolerant and have allowed practices to creep in that are surely and certainly undermining the churches as teachers of the correct life and as the moulders of character. Cards and dancing such as is practiced in the modern dance, are not conducive to the building of a life of purity. The modern dress is not just what it should be. The tendency is to laxity in morals. The children are to be excused for this immorality because they follow the example of the mothers of the country. You don't have to go to the ball room to find this loud, immodest dressing and the mannerism that is sure to follow in its wake. You can see it on the street any day. Some of it is so disgusting immodest that you wonder how the police let them by. The church is responsible for this to a large extent for they submit to it without demur. Some of the leaders of the church are first in cards, first in loud dressing, and first in arms in the giddy dance. Unless the church stands out against this, it will as surely as the night follows day, undermine and destroy its usefulness. The public is always hypocritical and uses the time honored expression "pluck the beam from thine own eye before you seek to take it from ours."

While the church is accomplishing much in an affirmative way, it must remember that it must also stand against the small things that impair its usefulness in the community. It must destroy the things which contaminate it, otherwise, it cannot properly do its larger and greater works.

Political activity in a church would be deplored but a preacher that fails to take cognizance of the great questions affecting the morals of the people and fails to take a firm, decided stand on these great questions, fails to fully discharge his duties as a leader of men and the moulder of opinion. It is his prerogative to preach good works and he can do so without introducing individual politics. Too long have they remained silent when they should have spoken. If they expect the politicians to reform the manners of the people, the reformation will never come.

WHOO, HURRAH.

Years ago when the Louisiana Lottery had taken possession of the State of Louisiana and directed and controlled its government, from which vicious state of affairs the State could not free itself, the United States government, by a simple law came to its rescue. It simply said that no mail could be delivered to this vicious octopus that was sapping the life blood of that State. The result was that the lottery disappeared over night and since that time not a vestige of it has been seen in that or any other State. The work was done so quietly and so effectually that the people did not realize that it had taken place except by the result. There was no debate, no fanfare of political trumpets, no turmoil of the people. It was destroyed root and branch over night.

The same can be done with the whisky traffic. That it will be done, is certain. That it has already been started, is also certain.

Neither whisky nor brandy can any longer be classed as medicines. The United States government has decreed officially that they must be dropped from the United States pharmacopoeia, the only official medical authority for the government and classification of medicines. Under this ruling, neither of these liquors can now be prescribed as medicines by physicians. Just how far this ruling will effect local State laws allowing physicians to prescribe these liquors for medical purposes, does not appear, but inasmuch as they are no longer medicines, it would seem that a physician cannot prescribe as a medicine something that the highest authority in the land has declared not to be a medicine. Also, it will prevent druggists in those places, where, under the State laws, a druggist can now legally sell liquors as medicines, from so doing. In other words, whisky and brandy are tabooed from the lists of medicines and along with this order will go that reputable class of quacks who undertake to make a living by selling prescriptions for the same.

It is a great victory for right. Hurrah!

The Lusitania! Did not our Americans go aboard her knowing in advance that it would be torpedoed? Fight? For whom and what? Shall millions of innocent Americans be sacrificed for a sentiment? Did those who were drowned stop to consider their own safety? If a foolhardy man who is told to stay away from a buzz saw, persists in putting his hand on it, to see if it is running, is that any reason why the mill must be destroyed or the people of the county fly to arms to whip somebody because they did not keep the "innocent" from putting his hand on the saw?

This is plain, blunt philosophy and its application can easily be made.

No, we are not devoid of sentiment. Governments are not run on sickly sentimentalities.

We are confronted with conditions as well as beautiful sentiments. Our manifest duties are to the living. We don't want this country plunged into a bloody war on the pretext of keeping the high seas open to our merchant marine. We must also remember that there was no effort made to open the seas to German commerce to keep Germans from starving.

No, we are not for Germany—we are for AMERICA.

The English press in America think the German note an insult to America. The German press think it is eminently satisfactory.

His wife, who preceded him to the grave, was Miss Mollie Deatherage, a sister of Hon. N. B. Deatherage and Mrs. Sallie Cornelison, of this city.

Mrs. T. J. Smith died unexpectedly at her residence on Lancaster avenue Tuesday at noon. She had been sick for some weeks. She is the widow of T. J. Smith who was in his life time a prominent merchant and financier of this city. She was a woman of intelligence and of strong faith in her religious views. As we go to press arrangements for the funeral have not been completed, but it will probably be held Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Smith is survived by one son, Hon. T. J. Smith, now State Banking Commissioner, who was with her at the end. Later, the funeral will be at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

ATTENTION DEMOCRATS!

The fight is on. Saturday, August 7, will soon be here when the Democrats will name their candidate for the LEGISLATURE. Every good Democrat with the pride and welfare of his party and county at heart should do all in his power by both vote and influence to help elect the best all round man and the one who will mean the most to his party in November and in the next two years.

Walter Q. Park is the Man

WE DEMOCRATS CAN NOMINATE HIM. So let's see to it that each one of us do our part to that end—the good people of the county are behind him.

- 1 There is no doubt whatever that he is a Madisonian of the truest type.
- 2 No one special man or lawyer is running him, so when elected he will not be obligated whatever, except to best serve his people.
- 3 He is a Christian gentleman and without the least embarrassment whatever, can be supported by the best and Christian people of the county.
- 4 He is the only candidate in the race running on the foundation and fundamental doctrine of Democracy—a government of, for, and by the people—and believes that they should vote on and settle the much discussed liquor issue, as they should all other great issues.

Smiles

"Are you feeling cross today? Stop and smile.

And, of course, if you feel gay. Why, you'll smile.

You will find that it will pay if everywhere and every day.

At your work and at your play. You will smile—just smile.

"Have you got the blues today? Try to smile.

Ten to one they'll go away if you smile.

You will find it helps a lot. Sort of makes you feel tip-top.

If you smile—just smile."

Governor McCreary Host at Reception for Association

All roads led to the mansion last evening, when James B. McCreary was the host at a beautiful reception in honor of Mr. John Barsett Moore, of New York, and the members of the Kentucky Bar Association, who are holding a two-days' meeting in the city. The hours of the entertainment were from 9 to 12 o'clock, during which time representatives of the bar and of resident and official life of the Capital City and of the State to the number of several hundred thronged the rooms to pay their respects to the Governor. The full dress uniforms of the Kentucky Colonels, a number of whom were present, and the handsome gowns worn by the women, in numerous instances, set off with jewels gave a brilliant aspect to one of the most notable gatherings of the year.

One of the very delightful parties of the season is the camping party at Marble Creek. The young people chaperoned by Mrs. S. P. Deatherage left Friday for that point where they will occupy the attractive bungalow of Mr. Morgan Sparks. Among those who went from here were: Misses Mary Allen and Louise Deatherage, Henrietta Luxon, Elizabeth Turley, Tommie Cole Covington, Frances Head, Effie Land and Marion Bain, and Messrs. At the conclusion of the play, the guests, twenty in number, repaired to the "Happy Hour Tea Room" where refreshing ices were bountifully served.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Turley have had a pleasant house party for Chautauqua composed of the following guests: Mrs. W. S. Spears, of Oklahoma, Mrs. R. S. Spears of Lexington, Misses Boggs of Waco.

Edna G. Panther, Pianist, Joseph A. Panther, Tenor and Anna Beck, contralto will give a joint recital at the Normal School Chapel on Friday evening July 30th.

Miss Beck who is a Cincinnati singer has been heard here on numerous other occasions and has a host of admirers in our city.

Mr. and Mrs. Panther are now located with us and are musicians of whom the whole city admire because of the talents.

One of the pretty parties of last week was the tea given on Sunday afternoon, by Miss Emma Watts in honor of her visitor, Miss Knight of Dallas, Texas.

Daddy's Bedtime

How the River
Story— Traveled to The Sea.

"WELL, kiddies, I'm ready to answer the question you asked me to-day when we were rowing on the river."

"Goody, goody!" shouted Jack and Evelyn, swarming all over daddy's knees. They were in their nightgowns, so daddy cuddled them close and told them about how the river traveled to the sea.

"Let us make believe," began daddy, "that there is a river spirit who lives away up in the mountains, so high that maybe we could never find his hiding place. He is a very mischievous spirit and always wants work to do, so every day he starts out with his diving rod to see if he can find a 'well eye' as a beginning for his river."

"He is a pretty happy fairy when he finds one because he knows he has found hidden water. He waves his wand, and the 'well eye' becomes so full that it naturally has to have an outlet, so, of course, the water, instead of being naughty and wanting to run away uphill, runs right down the mountain."

"At first there is hardly any depression in the ground over which the water flows. You see, the tiny little stream has no bed that it can call its own. But a little farther down the side of the mountain the river gathers force from other streams and rills."

"But one day the river was afraid. It had come to a great high precipice. 'There is really nothing to fear,' whispered the river spirit. 'Just you tumble right over. You'll be caught all safe at the bottom.'"

"So the tiny little stream took courage and leaped gaily down the precipice, dashing, dashing spray and foam as it fell. Sure enough, when it reached the bottom of the precipice it found a bed all ready made for it; not a nice soft one like mamma makes for you kiddies, but a hard rocky bed."

"After awhile, still cheered on by the river spirit, it grew broader and stronger and more intrepid."

"Cities were built on its high banks, and the river whispered: 'Let me give you my wealth; take the fishes in my waters; let me turn your water wheels and grind your corn and wheat; take my water and water your land so it will be more fertile and grow more wheat and corn; make great boats and I will carry them for you, for I desire more than anything else to be useful to men.'"

"When the river reached the sea it was no longer the tiny stream that feared to tumble over the precipice, and it rushed right into the sea and wasn't afraid of the great waves at all."

"Daddy, that is a very good story, but where does the hidden water come from?" asked Jack thoughtfully.

"Go to bed, kiddies. I've got to read my paper," said daddy.

THE LATEST.

Severe storms throughout the Ohio Valley reached the cyclonic rate and wrought much damage and took a heavy toll of life. Over twenty persons in and around Cincinnati were killed. The property damage runs into the millions. The line of the storms was from West to East through the Central West.

The liner Minnehaha was found to be a fire 570 miles from port. It is the supposition that Frank Holt who tried to blow up the capitol and later shot the financier J. P. Morgan, had placed it in the ship. The ship set back for Halifax from whence it started and reached port safe.

Joseph Mayer, of Louisville, while in a fit of despondency from ill health and from the absence from home of his thirteen year-old daughter, shot himself with suicidal intent but is still alive.

H. M. Griswold, one of the oldest members of the firm of John P. Morton & Co., Louisville, is dead after a long illness.

President Wilson is taking a long needed rest at Cornish, N. J. He spends much of his time automobiling.

Lexington was completely cut off from the outside world last Wednesday and Thursday caused by the destruction of the wires entering the city by the recent cyclonic storms. No lives were lost but property was damaged to a considerable extent. The growing crops were injured. Telephones over the city were put out of commission. It will take some days to repair the injury.

The United States government has purchased the last private wireless station located at Sayville and now has the control of wireless communication to Germany.

Pompadour Silk Evening Gown

Designed by Joseph, New York.

THIS pompadour silk evening gown, is made over a wide accordion plaited petticoat of yellow chiffon and lace, which permits the necessary freedom required in the dancing frock. It is edged with two bands of gold braid. The festoons of flowers on the silk overskirt are of delicate shades of pink and blue. The chic bodice, which is cut very low, is handsomely embellished in rhinestones, pearls and sequins. The tiny sleeve is just a cap of dainty lace.

Continued Rains
Damaging Wheat

What promised to be a bumper crop of wheat in this section of Kentucky now bids fair to fall one-half short of expectations. The trouble is caused by rains, which have fallen almost daily for many weeks. A farmer told the Messenger that the wheat shocked in perfect order, with stalks perfect straight, would more than likely prove all right, but every shock put in a faulty manner would go to the bad.

The yield of wheat was unusually good this year, and those farmers having any quantity of the grain were in high-glee over the outlook. It was ready to thresh several weeks ago, but as stated above, rain has fallen almost daily, and it has been too wet to handle.

Toot, Toot, Toot.

The Normal has brought suffering to many households in this city recently. The idea of equipping the students with orchestral instruments has long been contemplated, but it was not brought to a conclusion until last week when a consignment of instruments, fiddles, flutes, clarinets, horn and drums arrived. The distribution of the instruments was had Thursday and now you can hear any sound from the squawk of a goose to the braying of an ass. Many households are in agony and mamma and papa will have to take to the woods for peace. The woodshed is a good place for practice for we have had experience. After the boys can play all right in the woodshed, they will be invited in to entertain the company.

We wish the young hopefuls much success and trust that they will soon master their instruments and make melodies such as father did.

Gen. Grant's Night in Madison County.

A visit from Dr. William F. Francis, of St. Louis, to Berea and vicinity last week confirmed and made definite the rumor that General Grant once spent a night in Madison County.

The facts are these: Dr. Francis was himself a native of this county and his father kept a "stand" on the great thoroughfare leading from Kentucky to the sea-board through Cumberland Gap. Another of these hostleries, called the "Jones' Stand," was near the foot of the famous Big Hill.

Dr. Francis, as a boy of ten, was intimate with the Jones family, and afterwards lived himself in the Jones house. He was visiting at the Jones house at the time of the Battle of Richmond. He saw Metcalf's Union Cavalry pass up the Hill to find the location of the invading army; saw them retreat later in the day, and the great Confederate army march past—veterans who were great fighters, though with ragged uniforms. That night he saw the glare of the camp-fire on the sky, and at the crack of dawn the next morning, September 30, heard the report of a cannon answered by three other shots, and followed by the roar of battle. That morning a number of wounded Confederates were brought to the "Jones' Stand," and laid on the grass in the yard, where most of them died in agony the following night. Their bodies were interred back of the house, and some remain there still.

Dr. Francis was not there on the occasion of General Grant's visit the next spring, but heard the incident described repeatedly by members of the family who were there. Mr. Jones' three sons were in the Confederate army, and Jones himself had been warned to leave, because of his bitter talk against the Government. His wife, daughters and youngest son were conducting the "stand."

General Grant came from the South without an army but with perhaps a dozen staff officers and attendants, reaching the stand about supper time, and taking supper, lodging and breakfast there, proceeding the next morning to Lexington, where he was to take the cars.

He occupied the "office," a small building immediately adjacent to the house with its separate chimney, which stands today in substantially the same condition. The people spoke of him as the silent, taciturn man we have often heard described, courteous but reserved. Across from the "stand" was the United States Commissary, where stores of army supplies of all kinds were issued to passing regiments and wagons. On the same side with the house, a few rods north, was a blacksmith's shop, the log walls of which are still standing.

This property now constitutes a part of Berea College forest reserve, and is occupied by Mr. Carrier.

Dr. Francis is a most distinguished surgeon and medical instructor in St. Louis—one of the men who reflect credit on Madison County. His visit this summer has been a pleasure to a great number of old friends, and he has certainly made many new ones.—Berea Citizen

A Good Household Salve

Ordinary ailments and injuries are not of themselves serious, but infection or low vitality may make them dangerous. Don't neglect a cut, sore, bruise or hurt, because it's small. Blood poisoning has resulted from a pin-prick or scratch. For all such ailments Bucklin's Arnica Salve is excellent. It protects and heals the hurt; is antiseptic, kills infection and prevents dangerous complications. Good for all skin blemishes—Pimples, Salt Rheum, Eczema. ## Over the Hill.

Over the hill to the poor house, I'm setting a sizzling pace, I've mortgaged the home for an auto and I'm playing her straight for the place.

There are others well up in the running, but I'm holding my own, you bet.

I can see the roof of the country farm and I'm going to get there yet.

Of course I couldn't afford it (there are very few who can.)

But the family whine about it and insisted I wasn't a man.

If I didn't get six cylinders, a tonneau, some tires and plugs

And go out and speed on the highway with the automobile bugs.

The girls had to hire a "shuffer," a lantern-jawed son-of-a-gun.

And when sonny goes out for a joy ride I'm sorry he hasn't one.

For whenever he hits a lamp post or sends the old car in a ditch I cough up some more spunk to fatten the bloated rich.

Whoopie, clear the way, for I'm coming—just passed a bunch of my friends, All bent in the same direction, where the road of the scorcher ends.

It's the pace of a drunken sailor at the helm of a rudderless ship.

Over the hill to the poor house, I'm hitting a Heluva clip.—Ex.

Special Car

Building to Carry Liberty Bell Exposition is Given Its First Test.

Philadelphia, June 30.—Preliminary tests of the specially built steel flat car on which the Liberty Bell will be transported across the continent to the California exposition, were completed today. Traveling at the rate of fifty-five miles an hour over a net work of switches in a local freight yard, a glass filled with water was placed on the floor of the car and not dropped, was spilled.

The car is of all steel construction, capable of carrying a weight of more than 100,000 pounds. An electrical generator installed beneath the platform operated by the axle will charge the batteries for the hundreds of incandescent lamps with which the bell will be illuminated during the nights on the journey.

The Exploits of Elaine

A Detective Novel and a Motion Picture Drama

By ARTHUR B. REEVE
The Well-Known Novelist and
Creator of the "Craig Kennedy" Stories

Presented in Collaboration With the Famous Players and the Electric Film Company
Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company. All Rights Reserved.

SYNOPSIS.

The New York police are mystified by a series of murders and other crimes. The principal clue to the criminal is the warning letter which is sent to the victims, signed with the name "Elaine". The latest victim of the mysterious assassin is Taylor Dodge, the insurance president. His daughter, Elaine, employs Craig Kennedy, the famous scientific detective, to try to unravel the mystery. What Kennedy accomplishes is told by his friend, Jameson, a newspaper man.

After many fruitless attempts to put Elaine and Craig Kennedy out of the way, the Clutching Hand is at last found to be none other than Perry Bennett, Elaine's lawyer and the man she is engaged to marry. Bennett flees to the aid of one of the Chinese criminals. The Chinaman forces from Bennett the secret of the whereabouts of $7,000. Then he gives the lawyer a poison which will suspend animation for months. Kennedy reaches Bennett's hideout after he has lost consciousness and supposes him dead.

SEVENTEENTH EPISODE

THE WATCHING EYE.
Not a clue had been left by the kidnapers when they had so mysteriously spirited Elaine away from the apartment of Wu Fang. She had disappeared as completely as if she had vanished into thin air.

Kennedy was frantic. Wu and Long Sin themselves seemed to have vanished, too. Where they held her, what had happened to her, was a sealed book. And yet no move of ours was made, no matter how secret, that it did not seem to be known to them. It was as though a weird, uncanny eye glared at us, watching everything.

Craig neglected no possibility in his eager search. He even visited the little house where the courtyard where Elaine had given to Aunt Tabby, and spent several hours examining the collapsed subterranean chamber in the vain hope that it might yield a clue. But it had not.

Unexpectably, he was forced to the conclusion that not only Elaine's amazing disappearance, but the tragic succession of events which had preceded it had been caused, in some way, by the curiously engraved ring which Aunt Josephine had taken from her.

Craig had taken possession of the mystic ring himself, and now, forced back on this sole clue, it had occurred to him that if the ring were so valuable, other attempts would, without doubt, be made to get possession of it.

I came into the laboratory, one afternoon, to find Kennedy surrounded by jeweler's tools, hard at work making an exact copy of the ring.

"What do you think of it, Walter?" he asked, holding up the replica.

"Perfect," I replied, admiringly. "What are you going to do with it?"

"I can't say—yet," answered Kennedy, forlornly. "But if I understand these Chinese criminals at all, I know that the only way we can ever track them is through some trick. Perhaps the replica will suggest something to us later."

"Let's see if Aunt Josephine has received any word," he remarked absently, putting on his hat and coat, and nodding to me to follow.

Kennedy and I were not the only visitors to the subterranean chamber where it had seemed that the clue to the Clutching Hand's millions might be found.

It was as though that hidden, watching eye followed us. The night after our own unsuccessful search, Wu Fang, accompanied by Long Sin, made his way into the cavern.

Wu examined the safe which had been broken into.

Long Sin was now going over the walls of the cavern minutely, his close-set, heady eyes examining every square inch of it.

A sudden low guttural exclamation caused Wu to turn to him quickly. Long Sin had discovered, back of the debris, a long oblong slot, cut into the rock. Above it were some peculiar marks.

Wu hurried over to his henchman, and together they tried to decipher what had been scratched on the rock. As Long Sin's slender and sinister forefinger traced over the inscription Wu suddenly caught him by the elbow.

room in the rear.

As the two entered, the long men bowed with great respect.

"Let us be enemies no more," began Wu briefly. "Let us rather help each other as brothers."

He extended his right hand, palm down, as he spoke. For a moment the long leader parleyed with the others, then stepped forward and laid his own hand, palm down, over that of Wu. One of the others did the same, including Long Sin, the aggressive.

Peace was restored. Wu had arisen to go, and the long men were bowing a respectful farewell. He turned and saw a large vase. For a moment he paused before it. It was an enormous affair and was apparently composed of a mosaic of rare Chinese enamels, cunningly put together by the deft and patient fingers of the Oriental craftsmen. Extending from the widely curving bowl below was an extremely long, narrow, tapering neck.

Wu looked at it intently; then an idea seemed to strike him. He called the long leader and the others about him.

Quickly he outlined the details of a plan.

"Have you received any word yet?" asked Aunt Josephine anxiously, when Jennings had ushered us into the Dodge library.

Kennedy shook his head sadly. A few minutes later Jennings entered the room softly again. "The expressman has just called, with a large package," he said.

Aunt Josephine followed him out into the hall.

There, already, the delivery men had set down a huge Oriental vase with a remarkably long and narrow neck. It was, as hefted such a really beautiful object of art, most carefully crated. But to Aunt Josephine it came as a complete surprise. "I can't imagine who could have sent it," she murmured. "Are you quite sure it is for me?"

The expressman, with a book, looked up from the list of names, down which he was running his finger. "This is Mrs. Dodge, isn't it?" he asked, pointing with his pencil to the entry with the address following it. There seemed to be no name of a shipper.

"Yes," she replied, dubiously, "but I don't understand it. Wait just a moment."

She went to the library door. "Mr. Kennedy," she said, "may I trouble you and Mr. Jameson a moment?"

We followed her into the hall, and there stood gazing at the mysterious gift, while she related its recent history.

"Why not set it up in the library?" I suggested, seeing that the expressmen were getting restive at the delay. "If there is any mistake they will send for it soon. No one ever gets anything for nothing."

Aunt Josephine turned to the expressmen and nodded. With the aid of Jennings they carried the vase into the library, and there it was uncrated.

Craig walked around the vase, looking at it critically. I had a feeling of being watched, one of those sensations which psychologists tell us are utterly baseless and unfounded. I was glad I had not said anything about it when he tapped the vase with his cane, then struck the cane down the long, narrow neck, working it around as well as he could. The neck was so long and so narrow, however, that his stick could not fully explore the inside of the vase, but it seemed to me to be quite empty.

"Well, there's nothing in it, anyhow," I ventured.

I had spoken too soon. Kennedy withdrew his cane, and on the ferrule, adhering as though by some sticky substance, was a note.

Dear Aunt Josephine—
This is a token that I am unharmed. Have Mr. Kennedy give the ring to the man at the corner of Williams and Brownlee avenues at midnight tonight and they will surrender me to him.

ELAINE.
P. S.—Have him come alone or my life will be in danger.

"I thought something like this would happen," remarked Craig at length. "Oh," cried Aunt Josephine, "it's too good to be true."

"We'll do it," exclaimed Kennedy quickly, "only this is the ring that we'll give them."

"Let Us Be Enemies No More," Says Wu

like, up the stairs, until he came to the door of Aunt Josephine's room.

He bent down and listened. There was no sound except Aunt Josephine's breathing. Silently he drew from a fold in the loin-cloth a screwdriver and removed the screws from the hinges of the door. Quietly he pushed the bedroom door open, pivoting it on the lock, just far enough open so that he could slip through.

Creeping along the floor, like the reptile whose sign he had assumed, he came nearer and nearer Aunt Josephine's bed. As he paused for a moment his quick eye seemed to catch sight of the hulking lump under her pillow. His long, thin hand reached out and quietly removed the jewel case from under her pillow.

In a country roadhouse Long Sin was waiting patiently. The telephone rang, and the proprietor answered. Long Sin was at his side almost before he could hand over the receiver. It was Long Sin's master, Wu.

"Beware," came the whispered message over the wire. "Kennedy has made a false ring. I'll get the real one. By the great Devil of Gobi, you must cut him off."

"It is done," returned Long Sin, hanging up the receiver in great excitement.

He hurried out of the room and left the roadhouse. Down the road in an automobile, bound between two Chinamen, one at her head and the other at her feet, was Elaine, wrapped around in blankets, not even her face visible. The guards looked up startled as Long Sin streaked out of the shadow to the car.

"The master will get the ring himself. I will take care of Kennedy."

An instant and they were gone, while Long Sin slunk back into the shadows from which he had come.

Through the underbrush the wily Chinaman made his way to an old barn.

In the dim light of a lantern hanging from a rafter could be seen several barrels in a corner. Without a moment's hesitation Long Sin seized a bucket and placed it under the spigot of one of the barrels. The liquid poured forth into the bucket, and he emptied the contents on the floor, filling the bucket again and again and swinging it right and left in every direction, until the barrel had finally run dry.

Then he moved over to the window, which he examined carefully. Satisfied with what he had done, he drew a slip of paper from his pocket and hastily wrote a note, resting the paper on an old box. When he had finished writing he folded up the note and thrust it into a little hollow-carved Chinese figure, which he took also from his pocket.

With a final hasty glance about he extinguished the lantern, letting the moonlight stream fitfully through the single window. Then he left the barn, with both front and rear doors open. Taking advantage of every bit of shelter, he made his way across the field in the direction of the crossroads, finally dropping down behind a huge rock some yards from the finger post that pointed each way to Williams and Brownlee avenues.

Late that night Kennedy left his apartment prepared to follow the instructions in the note which had been so strangely delivered in the vase.

As he climbed into a roadster he tucked the robe most carefully into a corner under the leather seat.

"For heaven's sake, Craig," I gasped from under the robe, "let me have a little air."

I had taken my place under the robe before the car was driven up in front of the apartment lest some emissary of Wu Fang might be watching to see that there was such a trick.

"You'll get air enough when we get started, Walter," he laughed back under his breath, apparently addressing the engine.

We had reached a point in the suburb which was deserted, and I did not recognize a thing when he pulled up by the side of the road with a jerk.

A moment later he pulled the robe partly off me, and bent down as though examining the batteries on the side of the car.

"Get out on the other side in the shadow of the car, Walter," he whispered hoarsely. "Go down the road a bit—only cut in and keep under cover. This is Williams avenue. You'll see a big rock. Hide behind it. I'll get you to see Brownlee avenue. He prepared for anything. I shall have to trust the rest to you. I don't know myself what's going to happen."

I slid out and went along the edge of the road, as Craig had directed, and finally crouched behind a huge rock on the side of the car.

After a moment to give me a chance, Craig himself left the car pulled up close by the side of the road and went ahead on foot. At last he came to the crossroads just around the bend, where, in the moonlight, he could read the signs: "Williams avenue" and "Brownlee avenue." He stood there a moment.

Suddenly, at his feet in the dust of the road something heavy seemed to drop. He looked about quickly. No one was in sight.

He reached down and picked up a little Chinese figure. Tapping it with his knuckles he examined it curiously. It was hollow.

"Be careful," ordered Wu, proceeding gingerly from one stepping stone to the next. "We shall be followed no further than this."

He paused a moment and pointed his finger at the earth. Everywhere, except here and there where a stone projected, was a sticky, slimy substance. It was an old trick of primitive races.

They passed on from stone to stone until they came to the subterranean chamber itself.

Long Sin watched his master in silent admiration as, at last, he drew forth the mystic ring for which they had dared all.

Without a word Wu dropped it in the slot, a protuberance hit a trigger and pushed it a hair's breadth.

On the other side of the chamber, a great, broad, and grooved slowly turned, as though on a pivot. They watched, fascinated. Even then Wu did not forget the precious ring, but as the rock turned, reached down quickly and recovered it from the cup at the floor.

Inch by inch the pivoted rock moved on its axis. They flashed their lanterns full on it and, as it moved, they could see disclosed huge piles of gold and silver coins and bars and ornaments, a chest literally filled with treasures, set and unset, rubies, emeralds, precious stones of every conceivable variety, a cave that would have staggered even Aladdin.

For a moment they could merely stand in avaricious exultation.

Painfully and slowly we managed to trail Long Sin's footprints, until we came to a road where they were lost in the hard macadam.

Kennedy chose the most likely direction, for the trail had been at an angle to the road and Long Sin was not likely to double back. We had not gone many rods before Kennedy paused a minute and looked about in the moonlight.

"It's right, Walter," he cried. "Do you recognize it?"

I looked about. Then it flashed over me. This was the back road that led past the entrance to the treasure vault at Aunt Tabby's.

We went on now more quickly, listening carefully to catch any sounds, but heard nothing. At last Kennedy stopped, then plunged among the rocks and bushes beside the road. We were at the cave.

"You go this way, Walter," he directed. "I'll go around and down behind the rock. At last Kennedy stepped, then plunged among the rocks and bushes beside the road. We were at the cave.

With a great wrench I managed to pull it loose. But the weight on my other foot had imbedded it deeper in something. I struggled to free this foot and got the other caught. My revolver which I had drawn, was jarred from my hand, and in the effort to recover it, I lost my balance. Unable to move a foot in time to catch myself, I fell forward. My hands were now covered by the slimy, sticky stuff, and the more I struggled, the worse I seemed to get entangled.

Wu and Long Sin paused only a minute in astonishment. Then they literally fell upon the wealth that lay before them.

Suddenly they paused. There was the slight tinkle of a Chinese bell.

Kennedy had reached Aunt Tabby's garden, outside the roof of the subterranean chamber where it had given way, had gone down carefully over the earth and rock, and in doing so had broken a string stretched across the passageway. The tinkle of a bell attached to its end had attracted their attention and he stopped short, a second, to look about. Wu Fang had arranged a primitive alarm.

Quickly, Wu and Long Sin blew out their lanterns while Wu gave the rock a push. Slowly, as it had opened, it now closed and they stood there listening.

I was still struggling in the hard lime, getting myself more and more covered with it, when the reverberation of revolver shots reached me.

Wu and Long Sin had opened fire on Kennedy, and Kennedy was replying in kind. In the cavern it sounded like a veritable bombardment. As they retreated, they came nearer and nearer to me and I could see the revolvers spitting fire in the darkness.

I watched them fearfully as they hopped deftly from one stone to another to avoid the lime—and were gone.

"Craig! Craig!" I managed to cry feebly. "Be careful. Keep to the stones."

Stepping from stone to stone, he followed the retreating Chinamen. But they had already reached the mouth of the cave and were making their way rapidly down the road to a bend, in the opposite direction from which we had come. There Wu's automobile was waiting.

A moment later Kennedy appeared, but they had made their getaway. Battered, he turned and retraced his steps to the cave.

"They got away, Walter," he said, lighting a lantern they had dropped. "By George," he added, I think a little vexed that I had not been able to intercept them, "you are a sight!"

He was about to laugh, when I fainted. I can remember nothing until I woke up over by the wall of the chamber where he dragged me.

Kennedy had been working hard to revive me, and, as I opened my eyes, he straightened up. His eyes were caught something on the rock beside him. There was a little slot carved in it, and above the slot was a peculiar inscription.

For several minutes Kennedy puzzled over it, as Wu had done. Then he discovered the little cup near the ground.

"The ring!" he suddenly cried out. I was too muddled to appreciate at once the import of what he said, but he read into his pocket and drew forth the trinket which had caused so much disaster, as if it had been cursed by the Clutching Hand himself. He dropped it into the slot.

Struggling to my feet, I saw across from me the very rock itself moving.

"Look, Craig!" I cried, involuntarily pointing.

He turned. No, it was not a vision. It actually moved. Together we watched. Slowly the rock turned on a pivot. There were disclosed to our astonished eyes the hidden millions of the Clutching Hand.

I looked from the gold and jewels to Kennedy, in speechless amazement.

"We have beaten them anyhow," I cried.

Slowly Craig shook his head sadly. "No," he murmured, "we have found the Clutching Hand's millions, but we have lost Elaine."

Must Pay Debts

Eight thousand Government clerks in Washington have been warned to pay their debts or get out. And they should be made to walk the plank if they don't do it. In hard times their salaries go on. If they were not well paid for their ability they would seek other employment. And in paying debts all other regularly salaried men, in public or private station, should be likewise punctual. Mechanics whose employment is irregular have some excuse for getting behind, in dull times, with their obligations, but the clerk whose salary goes on every week in the year has no excuse for not living within his means.

The Gentleman and the Grouch

Stand a Gentleman and a grouch side by side, and which will command the greater respect?

Webster says that a gentleman is a man of "refined manners and good behavior," while the grouch is "gruff and morose."

It is easy for any man to be a gentleman, and he has much to gain and nothing to lose.

It is equally easy to be a grouch, with everything to lose and nothing to gain. The gentleman has many friends and few enemies, while the grouch has many enemies and few friends.

God smiles upon the gentleman, while devil smiles at the grouch.

Life is bright to the gentleman, while to the grouch it is full of gall.

Be a gentleman if you can, but don't be a grouch.

Stunning Street Costumes For the Summer Girl

SAND colored gabardine is used in the development of the nifty tailleur upon the left, which has all the salient style features of the new models, the bell sleeves, the sash and the wide skirt. A black and white feather boa worn with it gives an added touch of chic.

The very attractive gown upon the right is of cream serge and depends upon its accurate cut and careful fitting for its style, since there is absolutely no trimming but the large decorative pockets and the decorative collar and revers. A cream felt hat, with a nobbly band of black and white, completes this distinctive midsummer costume.

Stunning Sand Colored Frock

Designed by Joseph, New York.

A SAND colored taffeta overdress, ending at a point on each side, is posed over an accordion plaited chiffon underskirt. The accordion plaited underskirt has a full elbow length sleeve and the collar finishes at the neck with a frill of chiffon.

The corsage depends for its smartness on the high points of taffeta brought up on the chiffon and decorated with a pretty medallion of hand embroidery. Three large medallions also appear on the skirt and make the gown particularly attractive.

Wanted—Homes For Children

The Kentucky Children's Home Society has at present in its Receiving Home, 208 children. This is unprecedented number for this season of the year, but owing to the conditions created by the world wide war, the Society is over crowded with children.

We find it necessary to appeal once more to the citizens of Kentucky, and ask them to take these children into their homes. We have 17 babies under the age of two, 108 boys and girls under the age of seven, 75 of which are between the age of two and five. The rest are older girls and boys between the age of 7 and 14.

It would not only be an act of charity on the part of our citizens to open their hearts and their homes to these little children, but in nine cases out of ten, these little children will prove a great advantage and satisfaction to the families who take them. We do not believe that there are any finer looking children in the State than we have on hand at the present time.

The conditions in the work are serious. If we do not place these children promptly, we will be compelled to ask the judges not to send us any more children until we can place a large number in homes. We do not want to do this, as we want the institution open at all times to the call of the destitute, homeless child.

Will you not think of the need of each child for a mother and father, and if possible, send us a letter, telling us that you will take one of these little children into your home?

GEORGE SEHON, State Supt., Kentucky Children's Home Society, 1086 Baxter Ave., Louisville, Ky.

BANKERS URGED TO CO-OPERATE WITH FARMERS

SOUL MATERIAL HAS ENTERED THE BANK VAULTS OF THE NATION.

The Bank a Financial Power House to the Community.

By Peter Radford.

One of the greatest opportunities in the business life of the nation lies in practical co-operation of the country banks with the farmer in building agriculture and the adventure is laden with greater possibilities than any forward movement now before the American public.

A few bankers have loaned money to farmers at a low rate of interest, and oftentimes without compensation, to buy blooded livestock, build silos, fertilize the land, secure better seed, hold their products for a better market price, etc. The banker in contributing toward improving the grade of livestock; the quality of the seed and the fertility of the soil, plants in the agricultural life of the community a fountain of profit, that like Tennyson's brook, runs on and on forever.

Community Progress a Bank Asset. The time was when money loaned on such a basis would severely test the sanity of the banker; such transactions would win the directors like a blow in the face. A cashier who would dare to cast bread upon waters that did not return buttered side up in time for annual dividends would have to give way to a more capable man. This does not necessarily mean that the bankers are getting any better or that the milk of human kindness is being imbibed more freely by our financiers.

It indicates that the bankers are getting wiser, becoming more able financiers and the banking industry more competent. The vision of the builder is crowding out the spirit of the pawnbroker. A light has been turned on a new world of investment and no unwar ever received as large returns on the investment as these progressive bankers, who made loans to uplift industry. The bankers have always been liberal city builders, but they are now building agriculture.

A Dollar With a Soul. It is refreshing in this strenuous commercial life to find so many dollars with souls. When a dollar is approached to perform a task that does not directly yield the highest rate of interest, we usually hear the rustle of the eagle's wings as it soars upward; when a dollar is requested to return at the option of the borrower, it usually appeals to the Goddess of Liberty for its contractual rights; when a dollar is asked to expand its volume to suit the requirements of industry, it usually takes solemnly of its redeemer, but soul material has entered into the vaults of our banks and rate, time and volume have a new basis of reckoning in so far as the ability of some of the bankers permit them to co-operate in promoting the business of farming.

God Almighty's Noblemen. These bankers are God Almighty's noblemen. Heaven lent earth the spirit of these men and the angels will help them roll in place the cornerstones of empire. They are not philanthropists; they are wise bankers. The spirit of the builder has given them a new vision, and wisdom has visited upon them business foresight.

The cackle of the hen, the low of kine and the rustle of growing crops echo in every bank vault in the nation and the shrewd banker knows that he can more effectively increase his deposits by putting blue blood in the veins of livestock; quality in the yield of the soil and value into agricultural products, than by business, handshakes, overdrafts and gaudy calendars.

Taking the community into partnership with the bank, opening up a ledger account with progress, making thrift and enterprise stockholders and the prosperity of the country an asset to the bank, put behind it stability far more desirable than a letterhead bearing the names of all the distinguished citizens of the community. The bank is the financial power house of the community and blessed is the locality that has an up-to-date banker.

POLITICAL PRAYER MEETINGS. It is a sad day for Christianity when the church bells call the communicants together for a political prayer meeting. Such gatherings mark the high tide of religious political fanaticism, put bitterness into the lives of men; fan the flames of class hatred and destroy Christian influence in the community. The spirit actuating such meetings is anarchistic, un-Christian and dangerous to both church and state.

The success of the nation is in the hands of the farmer.

Work for the best and the best will rise up and reward you.

Tenant farming is just one thing after another without a pay day.

Lesson III.—Third Quarter, For July 18, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, 1 Kings iii, 4-15. Memory Verses, 9, 10—Golden Text, Prov. ix, 10—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

In every record there are the two sides, God's and ours. His is always perfect; on ours is the failure. The sinfulness of man and the wonderful grace of God sum up one phase of the whole Bible story. Last week we saw Solomon on the throne of the Lord asking and prospering (1 Chron. xii, 23). Today we are told that Solomon loved the Lord, walking in the statutes of David, his father, only he sacrificed and burnt incense in high places (verse 3). That "only" does not sound well, nor does the affinity with Pharaoh, king of Egypt, of verse 1. It looks like the beginning of wandering, a heart not perfectly with the Lord. Egyptian fellowship, as well as horses and wives, seems to be forbidden in Deut. xvii, 10, 17. In 11 Chron. i, 1, we read that "the Lord his God was with him and magnified him exceedingly and strengthened him in his kingdom." Here he could not ask, and all that was required of him was to walk before God in truth with all his heart and soul (1 Kings iii, 4). The ark of God was in the tent which David had prepared for it at Jerusalem, but the tabernacle of Moses with the brazen altar and all the other furniture was at Gibeon (11 Chron. i, 3-5), and there Solomon and all Israel offered many burnt offerings (Lesson verse 4). In every sacrifice we should see the Son of God and His one great offering once for all, by virtue of which not only salvation, but every blessing, comes to us sinners. In all the Old Testament story were many offerings and many kinds, but all pointed to Golgotha and were all fulfilled in Him, so that to us Christ is all. That night after the great sacrifice the Lord God appeared to Solomon, saying, "Ask what I shall give thee" (verse 5; 11 Chron. i, 7). "If he spared not His own Son, but delivered Him up for us all, how shall He not with Him also freely give us all things?" (Rom. viii, 32). "If ye shall ask anything in my name I will do it" (John xiv, 14). These and many similar assurances are ours, but who has proved the power of them? We must ask according to His will and that He may be glorified and then rest in the Lord and wait patiently for Him, for His time and way are always best.

Up to the time Solomon seems so humble and conscious of his unfitness for such a position, for he says, "I am but a little child; I know not how to go out or come in" (verse 7). Such an attitude toward God is always sure of His help and guidance. See Jer. i, 7-9. 11 Chron. xx, 12. Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom with all its righteousness and peace and joy even while on the way to the kingdom. Solomon summed up his need, as he then said, "In his request for a wife and understanding heart, that he might discern between good and bad and rule the people in righteousness. The Lord was pleased with his request and granted him what he asked and also things he did not ask for, such as riches and honor, so that both in wisdom, riches and honor he excelled all others (verses 12, 13). After his vision or dream he manifested his need, by offering sacrifices to God at Jerusalem (15). There are two expressions in this lesson for various reasons worthy of special attention. Solomon in his request said that the people over whom he ruled were like the dust of the earth in multitude, and it is written that "God gave Solomon wisdom and understanding exceeding much and largeness of heart, even as the sand that is on the seashore (11 Chron. i, 9; 1 Kings iv, 29). The two expressions "dust of the earth" and "sand upon the seashore" seem to cover the same ground. Compare Gen. xiii, 16; xxii, 17. The thought seems to be that God gave Solomon wisdom to meet each individual case as it might arise. A notable illustration is given in 1 Kings iii, 16-25. It is written that Solomon's wisdom excelled the wisdom of all the children of the east country and all the wisdom of Egypt, for he was wiser than all men; and there came of all people to hear the wisdom of Solomon, from all kings of the earth which had heard of his wisdom (1 Kings iv, 30, 31, 34). We cannot but think of the wisdom of Joseph and of Daniel, which was greater than all the wisdom of Egypt and of Babylon, in their days. But what is that to me? He who gave this wisdom still lives and is Himself the power of God and the wisdom of God; the Son of God who loved me and gave Himself for me (1 Cor. i, 24; Gal. ii, 20). It is written, "If any of you lack wisdom let him ask of God, and it shall be given him, but let him ask in faith nothing wavering." There is a wisdom that is ethereal, sensual, devilish, but the wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle and easy to be entreated (Jas. i, 5, 6; iii, 15-17). We need continually to know the way wherein we may walk and the thing that we may do, and to pray, "Cause me to know the way wherein I should walk, for it is not in man that walketh to direct steps" (Psa. cxlvi, 3; x, 23; Psa. cxlvi, 8), but we may rely on Psa. xxxiii, 8, if only we are honest in our desire for guidance and seek not our own will or pleasure. Then we shall experience Isa. xxx, 21.

: STOCK AND FARM :

We print more Farm News than any paper in Eastern Kentucky. Please give us your items.

Missouri's wheat crop this year is estimated to be worth $68,000,000.

Luther Rice, of Bourbon, sold a Shorthorn bull calf to Moore Bros. of Alabama, for $100.

Wm. W. Hottel, of near Paris, sold a yearling Shorthorn bull to Col. John T. Hughes, of near Muir Station, for $150.

W. H. Whaley, Jr., of near Paris, has bought and shipped more than 4,000 lambs from Bourbon this season.

Bert McClintock, of millersburg, bought a number of army mules in Montgomery county Monday at prices ranging from $130 to $150 per head.

Clark, Young &amp; Robinson, of Bourbon, shipped Saturday evening to the Cincinnati market a carload of fat heifers that were bought at prices ranging from 12 to 15 cents per pound.

Twenty car-loads of horses passed through Lexington Sunday en route to Newport News, Va., from which point they will be shipped to Germany. Nine-year-olds of horses also passed through here Monday.

The cattle market in Garrard county was considerably enlivened this week by one deal alone that involves nearly $12,000. Tom and David Benkin, one of the largest and most extensive cattle feeders in that county, sold to Monte Fox 110 head of cattle that will weigh 1,300 pounds each, for $8.25 the hundred. The delivery to be made the first ten days of July.

The bush bean crop is above the average this year, most gardens being well supplied with this product.

Vegetables of all kinds are plentiful and reasonable in price. Chickens, both broilers and fryers, are in the market, but continue high.

Clover meadows are the finest ever known in all sections of this county, and many of the fields have ripened while the balance of the crop is ripening fast.

More than the usual number of young colts are seen over the country and they are growing nicely. While lambs are not overly large, they are fat and nice.

All stock is in excellent condition. Dairy men and farmers are getting plenty of milk, and the ones who make butter a specialty are bringing in a fine product.

The farmers who held their bluegrass seed are busy curing them. About half a crop was gathered this year. Not for many years have the pastures been as luxuriant at this time.

The tobacco crop will be short, as many have set only a part of the crop planted. The ones who have finished have much smaller crops than last year.

Fruit is plentiful, although people who have been watching the blackberry crop say that the yield will not be anything like as good as was indicated a short time ago, and that instead of their being an abundance, there will be a scarcity of the "poor man's crop."

There is quite a contrast in the amount of garden stuff in the county this year and last. Last year vegetables could hardly be secured, but everybody who has a garden this year has some fresh vegetables ready for use. The early potatoes are fine and more than a usual amount of ground went to this crop.

On the whole the crop outlook in this county is fairly good. Corn is making rapid growth, but on account of the wet weather the weeds have grown fast and the farmers are putting in all time possible in cultivating this crop and cutting the weeds. The prospects for a corn crop is much better than at this time last year.

Bluegrass pastures are excellent and there seems to be an abundance of grass now in all sections of the county, fields showing a very heavy sod, and stock of all kinds are running in pastures knee high in grass. Many of the larger cattle men, however, are this season grazing clover instead of bluegrass and claim that they are getting better results from cattle, which were weighed when turned out, and then again put on the scales after a season of grazing, having showed a gain of three pounds a day.

W. G. P. Ledford, of Nicholas county, recently sold 65 shoats at $8 a hundred.

At the disposal sale of Aberdeen Angus cattle held by George Grant in Scotland, 58 head averaged $230.

Press dispatches state that a goose, after having been entombed for sixty-two days, was extricated alive from the ruins caused by the earthquake at Avezzano, Italy.

W. T. Waggoner, of Felda, Texas, has purchased from the King Ranch at Kingville, Texas, 3,000 yearling and 2 year old stock calves at an average of $37, a total of $111,000.

Caywood &amp; McClintock, of Paris, have shipped more than 4,000 lambs to the New York market this season, that were purchased of Bourbon farmers at prices ranging from 7 to 8 cents per pound.

The Turkish tobacco crop of Smyra is estimated at just a little more than half of last year. The shortage is due to lack of skilled tobacco growers, and is a result of the expulsion of the Greeks.

At Kansas City, Mo., James R. Connelly bought two mules from Alonzo Parish, who represented them to be sound. Later it was found that each mule had a crook in his tail. Connelly sued. The Court of Appeals made an examination, and verified the fact that they did have crooked tails. This proved conclusively that the mules were not sound, and gave Connelly a verdict. Parish's claim that a mule with a crooked tail can do as much farm work as a mule with a straight tail, was not considered.

LABOR LEADER IS AMONG TESTIFIERS

Charles Peetz Tells How Tanlac Brought Him Ready Relief.

Louisville, Ky., July 13 1915. Here is what Charles Peetz, prominent labor leader, of 101 West Market street, this city, has to say about Tanlac, the premier preparation, and the benefits he derived from the use of the medicine:

"I have been in a half sick condition for months. I was all run down, nervous, and had no appetite. My stomach was out of order and my digestion was bad. I often had headaches and was depressed in spirits."

"I find that Tanlac just exactly suits my case. After using the medicine about a week or ten days, my appetite and digestion are much better. I now sleep better and feel stronger in every way."

Tanlac, the premier preparation, that proved such a boon to Mr. Peetz and hundreds of others in Louisville and Kentucky, is now being taken with the most beneficial results by many of our citizens right here in Richmond. It is an excellent spring tonic, blood purifier and tissue builder.

Tanlac can be obtained in Richmond at H. L. Perry's Drug Store. adv.

Highly Complimentary.

The W. C. T. U. meeting which has just adjourned at Winchester, adopted a resolution highly complimentary to Judge Benton. In the course of the remarks it was said:

"Once to every man and nation Comes a moment to decide, In the strife of truth with falsehood, For the good or evil side."

Judge Benton has decided for Christ and those things which be of his kingdom.

Therefore, Madam President, I offer the following resolution and request its unanimous adoption:

Whereas, Judge J. M. Benton, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Circuit Judge, has voluntarily included in his platform those things which stand for morality, Christianity, and the uplift of any people; and

Whereas, His many other qualifications render his fitness for the office unquestionable, therefore, be it,

Resolved, That the members of the local branch of the W. C. T. U. heartily endorse the candidacy of Judge J. M. Benton in his race for Circuit Judge of the 25th Judicial District and lend their prayers in supplication for his success in both the August primary and the final election.

Madison Venire

Judge J. W. Newell, of Maysville, who is presiding in the case of the Commonwealth against Jno. M. Walter Arthur, Tuesday ordered a venire of fifty men from Madison county from which to select a jury.

This action was taken because of the fact that the case had been previously tried by Estill jurors, leaving the court to infer that it would be difficult to make up a jury from that county.

The Madison citizens arrived Wednesday morning and a jury was completed late in the afternoon, only one Ball man qualifying for the regular panel, and is composed of the following:

Nathan Rainey, Ed. Stone, Dillard Hill, George Adams, Alex. Ladet, Geo. Thorpe, Mike Miller, Matt Hendrix, Merrill Loxwood, Wm. Pitcher, G. D. Turpin, Chas. Wills.

Judge Riddell was retained as counsel for the defense before his appointment to the bench. He is assisted by Judge J. P. Adams, Capt. R. Friend, R. W. Smith and Kelly Kash, while the Commonwealth is represented by Commonwealth Attorney Johnson, County Attorney Carpenter, and A. F. Byrd.

The trial resulted in hung jury. Eight being for acquittal and four for conviction.

Tuesday morning the jury in the case of Jonas Richardson returned a verdict of guilty and fixed his punishment at confinement in the penitentiary for two years. ## NEW ATTORNEY

Mr. Green Miller was examined at Richmond last Friday before Judge Benton for law license and was granted same after passing a very creditable examination.

A stubbornly fought game of base ball was played between the local boys and College Hill, last Saturday, resulted in victory for the locals. The game was played on the College Hill grounds and our boys were outclassed till the seventh inning when Tyner was put on the slab and put a quietus on a battling rally that began early in the game. The score at the wind-up was 16 to 14.

The grand jury adjourned Thursday at noon after being in session eight days. Thirty-five indictments were returned.

Opportunity

(By Berton Braley) With doubt and dismay you are smitten. You think there's no chance for you, son.

Why, the best books haven't been written. The best score hasn't been run. The best song hasn't been sung. The best tune hasn't been played yet. Cheer up, for the world is young. No chance! Why the world is just eager. For things you ought to create. Its store of true wealth is still meager. It needs an incessant and great. It yearns for more power and beauty. More laughter and love and romance. More loyalty, labor and duty.

No chance—why there's nothing but chance! For the best verse has not been rhymed yet.

The best house hasn't been planned. The highest peak hasn't been climbed yet.

The mightiest rivers haven't been spanned. Don't worry and fret, faint hearted. The chances have just begun. For the best jobs haven't been started. The best work has not been done.
